Do you think the descriptions of these roles are an accurate description of your behaviour in teams? How do you see yourself differently?		My Primary role in the team is as Monitor Evaluator who can analyse problems, can give logical ideas and suggestions to enhance the project, can make better judgements when required. So, I think the descriptions of these roles are an accurate description of my behaviour in my team. I see myself differently as I have best co-ordination with my team members and can give more ideas.
Are there roles identified by Belbin that you might like to develop in yourself more? Which ones and why?		Yes I would like to develop the role of Resource investigator in myself because it will help me to explore varieties of resources for the project and I can come up with best resources and ideas for project development.
What possible situations in the coming months can you identify where you could work on developing these skills?		This is a group project so, we will be sharing our ideas, problems and solutions to each other which will help me to know learn more and execute my role in team in better way and also getting ideas about how to perform other roles from my teammates.
Considering your team working, how do you think you could improve your effectiveness in group work and in contributing to the		I can improve my effectiveness in group work by completing the tasks on time and sharing and learning ideas from my teammates along with helping my teammates and asking them to help me too when required.

success of teams that you work in?
Are the results of this inventory consistent with how you worked in the Foundation Project in your small groups for discussions and presentations?		No, the results were not good and excepted In the foundation project in our small groups for discussions and presentations. So more hard work and team co-ordinations is required for the project.
How well do you want to contribute to group presentations?		I want to be more confident for the presentation and give ideas to make the presentation clean, knowledgeable and to finish presenting on the given time period.
